Jarvis plan: loss of millions feared

It is only guess work so far but local school districts are plainly worried about the possible effects of the proposed Jarvis-Gann property tax amendment on the June ballot.

"It would probably reduce the income to us and school districts in general in the neighborhood of 60 percent from local property taxes," said the business manager of the Pleasanton-Amador district Doug Rose.

The loss in Livermore could range from $8 million to $10 million, according to preliminary estimates by business manager Bruce Jamieson and Darrel Carter of the Murray school district put the potential loss near 50 percent, $3.9 million.

Livermore ..... $10 million$
Murray ..... $3 million?
County ..... $233 million?

Alameda County estimates placed the potential loss at $233.6 million for all county schools.

"That's somebody's speculation, somebody's guess but that's as good or bad a guess as anybody's. There isn't enough data to deal with yet," said Rose.

The amendment qualified for the June ballot with 1.26 million signatures and would limit property taxes to 1 percent of the assessed 1975-76 value which in turn would cut revenues statewide by about $8 billion.

And while a suit has been filed in Sacramento Superior Court to have the measure removed from the ballot for being unconstitutional, hearings are not scheduled until Feb. 20 and could last three weeks with no guaranteed result.

So the Murray, Amador-Pleasanton and Livermore school districts have begun calculating their 1978-79 budgets and the possibility of Jarvis passing has only added headaches to an already complicated process.

If it passed, local districts would be crunched between massive losses of revenue and salary costs unchanged because state law prohibits the firing of teachers except to compensate for declining enrollment. Personnel costs are almost 80 percent of the district budgets.

Studying Dublin's future

DUBLIN — Directors of the Dublin San Ramon Services District (DSRSD) conceptually approved Supervisor Valerie Raymond's suggestion to form a broad-based committee to conduct a study on the feasibility of incorporating Dublin.

Raymond is supervisor of Alameda County's first district. She presented her views in person Tuesday night during a DSRSD board meeting. She had also stated them in a letter to DSRSD directors. She offered to attend the meeting to provide any necessary clarification of her viewpoint.

Raymond said she and other supervisors were not in favor of letting an incorporation study fund of $1000 be "wasted" on an "incomplete" study of Dublin's proposed incorporation.

Raymond and other county officials have stated the tab for a more complete study would run around $10,000 to $15,000.

A citizens group had offered to do the study for $1000 (Citizens for Dublin Cityhood (CDC)). The Dublin Chamber of Commerce formed a steering committee to validate the findings of CDC. The plan included studying alternatives to incorporation such as annexation to Pleasanton or remaining status quo.

Raymond and other supervisors said DSRSD should be more directly involved since incorporation would have an impact on the district. They also suggested alternatives be studied.

The proposed broad-based committee should have representatives from DSRSD, the county, City of Pleasanton (Raymond suggested Clay Brown, city manager), a CDC member or members and chamber representatives, according to Raymond.

She stressed that such a committee would have more political clout as far as the Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCO) and the county was concerned.

"The effort is not to just spend a $1000," Raymond said. "The effort is to survey Dublin's future in the best

ABAG liaison Bill Herlihy says the plan could even exclude development of new clean industry, such as the Pleasanton Clorox research plant pictured here.

Valley's future

ABAG plan threatens growth

To what degree will the Association of Bay Area Governments (ABAG) environmental management plan effect and limit future valley industrial growth?

Valley officials who attended yesterday's ABAG general assembly came away with varying opinions.

The ABAG plan is a nine county effort to cut back pollution and growth problems. Some of the proposed policies are construed as attempts to control land use — a controversial point.

Pleasanton city council member Bill Herlihy believes the air pollution section and the proposed industrial siting report could discourage any industrial growth here. Herlihy, who acts as council's liaison to ABAG, says the industrial siting report being considered would use environmental standards and an area's labor force as guidelines to determine where new industries should settle.

"If clean industry wanted to settle heret and we wanted them they could be denied because of the ABAG plan," he says, explaining that Pleasanton has a tight housing market and a small work force, thus new industry employees might have to live in other areas and commute.

But Livermore mayor Helen Tirsell says that plan section would only apply to large industry needing several thousand employees.

That large of an industry, she adds, isn't likely to settle in the valley anyway.

Both she and valley supervisor Valerie Raymond support the proposed plan without Herlihy's hesitation.

They grant that the plan will probably favor industry settling in areas other than the valley, but they claim discouraged industries wouldn't be allowed to locate here with or without an ABAG plan due to the valley's air pollution problems.

And the final question, all three admit, is whether the valley wants to take an active part in implementing an environmental plan or wait for the federal government to force a plan upon local residents.

Pleasanton and Livermore city councils meet Feb. 21 in their respective chambers to discuss any amendments each city may submit to ABAG. The nine county cities making up ABAG hope to adopt a plan in April.

Rep. Stark calls forum

Rep. Pete Stark (D-Oakland), the Valley's congressman, will hold an open forum Saturday in Livermore to receive public input on any topic people wish to discuss.

Members of Stark's staff will also be present to assist constituents with individual problems involving government.

The forum begins at 10 a.m. at the Livermore Recreation Center, East Room, located at Eighth and H streets.

Teachers want 10 percent

Livermore teachers are asking for a 10 percent pay increase in their first contract proposal to the school district this week.

The boost would raise the salary range for teachers to $10,962 for starters, and a maximum of $22,314.

The Livermore Education Association is also asking for a reduction in class sizes at all grade levels.

County asks I-580 review

Alameda County Supervisors voted unanimously this week to ask the state Department of Transportation to review its policy of diamond lanes for carpools on Interstate 580 in the Dublin Canyon.

Supervisor Charles Santana wanted the resolution to call for elimination of the diamond lane eastbound, but other supervisors nixed it. Supervisors Joseph Bort and Valerie Raymond insisted that at least one of the four lanes in each direction should be reserved for buses.

Tot OK after 10-day coma, goes home

A 2-year-old boy who spent 10 days in a coma after being struck by a car Jan. 15 has been released from Valley Memorial Hospital in Livermore.

Mathew Eugene Walls of 525 Junipero St. in Pleasanton sustained severe injuries when he ran between parked cars on Second Street and was struck by a car.

Mathew spent two weeks in the hospital's intensive care unit. Daily therapy will allow him to recover completely from his injuries, his mother said yesterday.

Valleyites beat storm on Shasta

Four Valley rock climbers, including Robert Several, editor of the Livermore Independent, were reported safe at Mount Shasta's Ski Bowl lodge yesterday after spending Tuesday night stranded in blizzard on the mountain.

The four, Several, 40; John D. Tuttle, 16, of Livermore; Lynn Seppala, 25, of Pleasanton and Henry D. Craggs, 38, of Livermore and owner of Mountain High mountaineering were reported in good shape but snowed-in at the lodge by blizzard conditions.

Siskiyou County sheriff's deputies were still searching for another climber, 34-year-old Ron Sova of Albany and two others in the party, Tom Wainwright, 16, of Livermore and Edward a Peterson, 41, of Albany safely descended the mountain Tuesday night before the storm.

LA arrests actor as 'strangler'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A "very religious" Hollywood actor, who police at first didn't take seriously, was arrested Wednesday in the Hillside Strangler case after he provided investigators with "enough probable cause to book him," police said.

A balding, mustachioed Ned Terrence York, 37, told police he knew Kristina Weckler, the ninth victim in the series of strangulation murders that began last September, a police source said. Though York was being investigated for all 12 of the murders, he was booked under Miss Weckler's case number.

York, 6-foot-4 and 240 pounds, played mostly small roles in television shows. His last known appearance came earlier this month in a rerun episode of the hit ABC series, "Starsky and Hutch."

York also was closely associated with the Hollywood Free Theater, a Baptist-sponsored group that presents religious plays. The actor had been set to appear in a production there Wednesday night entitled "Let Your Spirit Shine."

York was arrested at his Hollywood Hills home.

Junk food

Students hear tips on health

LIVERMORE— "Sam" was doomed virtually from birth.

As a baby, the "cute" chubbiness masked a gathering problem of excess weight. And as "Sam" grew into the elementary school, and then high school years, the overweight problem became more pronounced.

Eating often meant a burger and fries, a candy bar or a "coke."

He was bigger than most of the kids in high school, playing on the football team and "hanging-out" with friends at the drive-in.

After flunking out of college after a year, "Sam" became a car dealer— and began a daily routine of umpteen cups of coffee, a junk food lunch and then a "good" dinner, sandwiched between drinks.

At 24, Sam seemed to be successful and always seemed to feel bad because he really didn't know what it meant to feel good.

At 34, because he just "felt rotten," Sam went to the doctor, who said he "looked good." The doc gave him a couple of tablets and told him to go back to work.

A few months later Sam died — and they wrote on his tombstone "never sick a day in his life."

This mythical "Sam," who may be a composite of some of us, died because of high blood pressure, low blood sugar and improper diet.

Nina Kiger of The Weight Place can tell you something about being overweight, nutrition and diet— and what they mean in achieving a long and healthy life cycle.

"When I was your age and growing up," Ms. Kiger told a class of home economics students at Livermore High Wednesday, "there was never any mention of nutrition."

"As an ex-180 pounder, I've been through it all....I've gone without meals, taken pills, and starved for the sake of being thin," said Ms. Kiger, who has fashioned a three-week program to aid nutrition weight control of local teens and their parents.

Store robbed at gunpoint

PLEASANTON — Four men robbed Hopyard Liquors at 2787 Hopyard Road of $110 Tuesday night, police reported.

According to police, four men entered the store about 7:30 p.m. and attempted to buy beer. Clerk Oscar McCarthy refused the sale when none of the men could produce valid identification for proof of age.

One man then pulled a handgun and ordered McCarthy to a back room. The suspect took McCarthy's wallet while the other suspects removed money from a drawer below the cash register.

The suspects were apparently unable to open the cash register, police said, since the money in the till was untouched.

The four men fled in a late model black Cadillac El Dorado. A woman in her early twenties with long blonde hair was seen in the vehicle.

Police are searching for four male latinos in connection with the robbery.

PLEASANTON — District attorneys in two counties are investigating an insurance company that may have bilked a Pleasanton woman of $700, police reported.

The Bonita Avenue resident told officers she had been contacted in November about buying health insurance. She purchased the policy with a $114 down payment and a second payment of $588 two days later. The woman said she has not heard from the company since she mailed the checks.

Authorities theorized that a man in charge of the receipts may not have forwarded the payments to the parent company.

The complaint is being investigated by district attorneys in San Joaquin and Alameda counties.

PLEASANTON — Two rings valued at $600 were stolen from a Santa Rita Road apartment recently, police reported.

The two diamond rings were stored in a jewelry box. Police said officers had found similar rings when a search warrant was executed at the appartment Feb. 1, but they were not reported missing at that time.

Suspects are being sought for questioning in the theft.

PLEASANTON — Police arrested a 49-year-old San Jose man late Tuesday on suspicion of battery in the beating of a Bernal Avenue apartment dweller.

A woman told officers that she and the suspect were at her apartment when he became angry and began beating her. She sustained a broken tooth, swollen right eye and bites on an arm and leg as a result of the alleged attack.

Booked on suspicion of battery was Eugene Clifford Pavan of San Jose.

LIVERMORE — Livermore High School was burglarized of cash, checks and camera equipment this week, police reported.

He finds chinks in the armor

DUBLIN — Al Hurt and his employees help keep danger a stranger to people by using nondestructive techniques to test industrial structures and other items for flaws that could cause a disaster if not located and corrected.

Hurt, owner of Industrial X-Ray and Testing Company, has been in this line of business for 19 Years. He has lived in Dublin for eight years. His Dublin home is headquarters for his company, he explained.

"Nondestructive testing means we have the capability of testing the integrity of a part without destroying the part," he said.

He utilizes x-rays, gamma rays, ultra-sonic vibrations, liquid penetrant, magnetic particle and eddy current for testing purposes. Each method fulfills a specific need, Hurt explained.

For instance, X-rays can help spot a faulty weld. During an ultra sonic inspection, a sound path is sent through metal to detect internal defects such as a variance in thickness. This variance might mean metal integrity is below specifications.

While checking out 70 ski lift chairs, Hurt discovered weld failure in all 70. He also rejected the welds on a million gallon water storage tank in Nevada.

"If that tank had been filled without being tested, it could easily have burst and wiped out an entire town."

Before a Dublin school was occupied, weld failures were located, he said. They were corrected.

In fact, all flaws and/or failures found by Hurt's company have to be corrected and rechecked by the company before Hurt will sign a release. Since he is licensed by the state, among others, the state will not approve a correction unless Hurt's signature is on the proper document, he reported.

Besides testing high pressure containers such as storage tanks and high pressure piping systems, other items have been tested by Hurt's company. These include offshore oil rigs, school busses, race cars, wine storage tanks, gasoline storage tanks in Martinez, small aircraft, airplane tires helicopter blades, bridges, ships and cranes. He also checks buildings for "earthquake structural integrity."

Hurt said nondestructive industrial testing "really took off after World War II."

He was involved in the Apollo I and II programs. He declared that work to be some of the most interesting he has done since he was able to meet the astronauts during that time.

Hurt's company primarily works in Northern California and Nevada. Besides doing nondestructive industrial testing, Hurt is licensed to teach and certify welders.

possible way."

DSRSD directors made it clear their serving on the committee would in no way involve "financial participation." on their part. In other words, they would not get paid for attending committee meetings, etc.

Also, DSRSD director serving on the committee would do so as a "regular citizen"; not as a board member.

DSRSD Director Ann Jolley disagreed with other directors about DSRSD getting involved with incorporation.

"Of course we would be affected by incorporation but outside of that I don't think it's any of our business," she said. "The district really has nothing to do with incorporation and we would have no right to spend any money pursuing a study about it."

She pointed out the county and LAFCO had money, staff, and means to conduct a surver of residents to see if residents are or are not in favor of incorporation plus compiling a feasibility study."

DSRSD President Richard Fahey said the district was a "representative organization" and the county would respect "our input."

Director Joe Covello said, "I think the whole damn district should be incorporated which includes San Ramon. I don't mean San Ramon should secede from Contra Costa County but there are ways to get around that."

Director Charles Ladner pointed out a proposed new shopping complex near Dublin but in Pleasanton could hurt Dublin's tax base. If the shopping center became a a reality, Ladner said Dublin's strong tax base could be wiped out and make incorporation a shaky proposition.

Proponents of Dublin's incorporation use the community's hefty tax base as a selling point for cityhood.

Covello said he thought the county should commit itself more to the issue.

Raymond countered with, "We need something more tangible before supervisors would be willing to become more involved. Right now it's kind of a fuzzy thing."

Raymond and DSRSD directors said anyone interested in serving on the proposed committee should contact them.

County streamlining service

HAYWARD — Alameda County is three years ahead of Jimmy Carter.

President Carter last summer ordered a reorganization of those departments in federal government which deliver $22 billion worth of social services to people outside the welfare sector. It includes such things as day care and job training.

Carter's goal is to streamline and avoid duplication of services. He wants to get the most social program for the buck.

Alameda County wants to do the same thing with the $350 million spent annually from public and private sources in the county. It hired George Bleth three years ago to handle the coordination.

Bleth, who has a degree in urban studies and experience administering state and federal programs, helped the county create the Human Services Council, which began meeting two years ago.

It is a collection of major dispensers of social services, including several county departments, the cities of Oakland and Berkeley and the Associatied Community Action Program and the Alameda County Training and Employment Board.

Meetings among these key bureaucrats already have helped, in a philosophical way, to streamline the delivery of social services because of better communication.

But the major contribution to the streamlining will be compilation of a data bank telling supervisors who sponsors which social programs where. Bleth expects that to be ready by June.

Having a reliable storehouse of information about social programs, including the health clinics and drug counseling programs prevalent at the grass roots today, will help supervisors establish funding priorities better, said Bleth.

It also will be an advantage to cities who spend money in some of the same social areas, Bleth added. They will know where the county or other agencies are putting their social efforts and be able to get the information quickly and easily.

It works in the other direction, too. "Why should the county do planning in the cities if those cities are doing it themselves," said Bleth.

Another beneficial result is the savings in staff time — and therefore money. "The way it has been in the past, different social planner might research the same data sources and do their own individual preparations. With the data base available to all, that staff duplication will be eliminated," said Bleth.

The data base also will be able to answer, at least in part, the perennial Valley question: how much of the county tax dollar to do we get back in the social services area. A study based on data from 10 years ago shows that the Valley has 126 social programs (private and public sectors) or 7 per cent of the county total. That figure will be updated prior to the June deadline for Bleth's report.

It may even be possible in the future to work in numbers which will reflect Valley population and tax-paying to go further into the cost effectiveness of service delivery to the Valley.

Her body found in a Livermore shed

LIVERMORE — The badly decomposed body of a woman identified as Pauline Margaret Fay, 64, was found in an old shed behind Murillo's Blacksmith and Welding Shop, 2458 Portola Ave., yesterday morning.

Mrs. Fay, also known as Pauline Depont, had been reported missing by her husband, Theodore Fay, since Dec. 19. Identification was made by her attorney through her jewelry and clothing. Police said there was no indication of foul play or physical violence.

The body was discovered by William Murillo who had gone to the shed to get an electric motor. Murillo said the storage shed had a latch, but no lock, and was seldom used.

Mrs. Fay had left home on other occasions, police indicated.

The Alameda County Coroner's office is investigating the cause of death.

Excess weight is killer

Ms. Kiger warned of the dangers of eating junk foods, being particularly critical of the fare served up by "fast food" operations.

"They're saying today that maturity is hastened by the drugs added to meat," Ms. Kiger commented. "But we can exist on two ounces of protein a day."

Much of her discussion centered on hypoglycemia, which is an abnormal decrease of sugar in the blood.

"You don't have to be 42 to have hypoglycemia," she told her youthful audience, "they're finding high blood pressure in 3-year olds."

Referring to additives, particularly in meats, Ms. Kiger mentioned one international fast food chain which she contends "controls 10 per cent of the beef output in the United States."

"To help control your weight, you've got to eat three meals a day. You have to have breakfast to function until lunch time and you need a lunch with a high protein intake to carry you to dinner.

"We need exercise, better nutrition and must stay away "We need exercise and better nutrition, to stay away from the fast food chains and to learn more about our body— to listen to our body."

Ms. Kiger's nutrition store, The Weight Place at 1773 Barcelona, is inviting youngsters and their parents to take part in a "three week program" aimed at losing weight. For information, call 443-0670.

Amador, Pleasanton schools

New leader's traits listed

Administrators in the Amador and Pleasanton school districts have listed criteria they would like to see applied in seeking a superintendent to replace Dr. Bruce Newlin, who departs Friday for the Norwalk-LaMirada Unified School District.

Members of the districts' leadership team elected to list criteria rather than have an "in-put" night, as scheduled for district residents, classified employees and teachers.

As it turned out, the informational evenings hosted by trustees proved a flop attendance-wise, with turnouts ranging from zero for the second residents "input" night to a high of 13 for the last one.

Administrators listed criteria under six headings, as follows;

ACADEMIC PREPARATION — A new superintendent should have a minimum of a Master's Degree together with the appropriate administrative credentials required as a superintendent.

PROFESSIONAL BACKGROUND — (S)He should have administrative experience at both school and district levels. The experience should have been in a district of our approximate size and with a grade span of K-12. Experience in a district with Regional Occupational Program and Vocational Education is desirable. (S)He should have remained for a reasonable length of time in his/her last administrative position.

PERSONAL CHARACTERISTICS — In addition to being personalbe, rticulate, accessible and honest, (s)he should have the ability to inspire leadership and direct the staff toward the achievement of the districts' goals.

MANAGEMENT PHILOSOPHY AND CHARACTERISTICS — (S)He should bring to the districts a management philosop-y and style that is compatible with the present participative model of these districts. (S)He should demonstrate proven leadership in this area. Additionally, (s)he should have broad experience in curriculum development' broad knowledge of legislation as it affects school district administration, and through his/her management style, inspire the trust of the staff.

COMMUNITY/STAFF RELATIONS — In addition to demonstrated history of success in this area (s)he should be able to represent the districts to the public and maintain a program of publicity and public relations which will keep the public informed as to the activities, needs and successes of the schools. In a his/her relations with the staff (s)he should reenforce the present management system rather than to introduce a new style.

EDUCATIONAL PHILOSOPHY AND SKILLS — As a part of the educational leadership of the districts' (s)he should demonstrate a working knowledge of curriculum development, personnel administration and school finances. (S)He should also demonstrate expertise in group relations working with staff and lay groups. (S)He should also have experience and skill in the area of collective bargaining.

The leadership team also comments, "It is our hope that regardless of all other factors that the boards will select the most QUALIFIED, available candidate for the superintendent of these districts."

Budget makers in quandry

Tentative budgets are due July 1, the day Jarvis would take effect if passed giving the districts less than three weeks to radically revise their budgets.

"If Jarvis passes we'll go bananas," said Rose, only half joking.

Planners agree current funding regulations could force further "hidden" cuts beyond the absolute loss of local and state taxes. For example, moderate changes in the teacher/pupil ratio could end eligibility for state funds designed to help keep ratios low, Jamieson said.

"There might be ramifications in maintaining programs you have to maintain a certain level for to keep federal funding," added Carter.

So what steps are being taken?

Livermore has just begun to analyze the potential problems. Ironically, Jamison has spent recent weeks preparinq a June 6 ballot measure that if passed would authorize a revenue limit increase in the district while still lowering property taxes slightly. With Jarvis, this would be lost.

Most districts' staffers admit they don't know where to start. Legal contradictions forced by the amendment could place the entire problem in the courts.

Or, as Carter suggested, "There are several possibilities; one would be we could run the schools until January then close. Another would be to ask for voluntary cuts in salary."

Or, as Rose suggested, "We will develop a budget based on Jarvis then make some kind of Ouija board guess."

School anxiety grows on Jarvis tax reform

Forecasts of fiscal disaster followed by massive layoffs continue to emanate almost daily from school district and municipal administrations in the Valley and throughout the state.

The forecasts are all in reaction to Proposition 13 on this June's ballot— better known as the Jarvis-Gann tax reduction initiative.

The measure has already gained the unyielding enmity of not only school districts, but Alameda County Supervisors. In early January supervisors tore into alleged "big tax breaks" that large corporations might receive from Jarvis-Gann.

Supervisors subsequently voted to oppose the ballot measure.

The action came after Alameda County Assessor Donald Hutchinson compiled a list of almost three-dozen large corporations which allegedly would get up to a 70 per cent tax break, should the initiative pass and go into effect July 1.

Another, possibly more balanced analysis of Jarvis-Gann has been prepared by the Assembly Revenue and Taxation Committee staff and released through the offices of Robert C. Coney, deputy superintendent of schools for the county.

The panel believes many of the provisions of the initiative are "vague and pose serious problems for implementation. For example, how will the 1 per cent be divided up among the local districts? How will the reassessments be divided up? The initiative is written to imply that only "districts" will share in the proceeds of the 1 per cent. Does this freeze out cities and counties totally?"

Other questions purportedly raised but not answered by the initiative include:

"Is the intent to 'cut' local government services by $7 to 8 billion ? If so, what services will be eliminated? Police and fire protection? Parks and recreation?"

LEA seeks raise in new pact terms

LIVERMORE— A 10 percent raise and increased personal leave time were prominent features of the contract proposal for 1978-79 offered by the Livermore Education Association to the school district Tuesday night.

Livermore Valley Unified School District board president Betty Carrell said approving a contract agreement would be time-consuming but noted contract provisions would be aired publicly.

The higher salary increments would raise starting salaries to $10,962 with the maximum to $22,314.

The LEA proposal included a request for one day of unrestricted personal leave each year in addition to the 10 days of sick leave now available and two 40-minute preparation periods each week for elementary teachers.

Also, retired district employees with at least 12 years service, the highest salary increment now available, would receive medical and dental benefits under the proposal.

Finally, a reduction in class sizes was asked; elementary classes would be reduced from 32 to 25 students, junior high school from 24 to 20 students and high school from 25 to 20 students.

The LEA and the district signed their 1977-78 contract last October after seven months of fact negotiations and fact finding by a state arbitrator.

Sheriff seeks female deputies

An examination for female applicants wishing to become deputy sheriffs with the Alameda County Sheriff's Department will be held March 18. Applications must be received by March 1.

Minimum requirements for applicants are as follows: High school graduate or GED equivalent; between 21 and 34; weight proportionate to height; vision not less than 20/70 in each eye without glasses, not less than 20/30 with glasses; and possession of a valid California's driver's license.

Applicants interested in taking the March 18 exam should contact the department's affirmative action division before March 1. Applicants can call Deputy Patricia Glaude or Deputy Lou Lozano at 874-6955.

Search will cost

OAKLAND — Why hire an outside consultant to look for a successor to Alameda County Administrator Loren Enoch when the county personnel department can do the job, Supervisors John George asked fellow supervisors this week.

George wanted to save $8,000 by keeping the search for a new administrator "in house."

But he didn't get a second for his motion and instead the county will hire Korn and Ferry to do the looking.

Supervisor Joseph port said that even doing the job "in house" would not be totally free because of advertising and travel costs incurred by a county search.

But more important, the market is different than it was six years ago when Enoch was hired and a professional firm can search the highways and biways better, said Bort.

Enoch announced his resignation last month and it will take effect March 31, though he will remain on a consultant basis for a few more months to see next year's budget through to pletion. a presentation to the board of supervisors in late spring.

CPR class held

LIVERMORE — Alameda County Fire Department will conduct a cardio-pulmonary resuscitation (CPR) class for residents of the rural areas outside the city limits.

The class will be held from 7-10 p.m. on March 15, 17 and 21 at the county fire station, 1617 College Ave. The class will include first aid for choking and fire safety.

The course is being offered by Red Cross volunteers in the fire department and there will be a $4 cost for materials. Interested participants should contact Bob or Randy Moor at 447 6611 by March 1.

Emergency center meets

LIVERMORE — The Emergency Fund Center will hold its annual meeting tonight, 7:30 p.m. at Cactus Jack's Restaurant. There will be an election of board members and the public is invited.

Patients need help

The Ministry to the Aging Through Community Help (MATCH) will hold a "Passages Continued Workshop", to coordinate people in the community who can give one hour a week to support and befriend a convalescent patient who is alone.

Three panelists will give their views on the decades following Gail Sheehy's book Passages, on Saturday Feb. 11 from 9 a.m. to noon at the Presbyterian Church, 2020 Fifth St., Livermore. For more information, contact Audrey Cedarlund, 447-2573, or Elaine Storms, 447-8050.

Artists convene

The Valley Artists will meet Tuesday, Feb. 14 at Fallon School, 7425 Larkdale Drive, Dublin for a program presented by Juan Pena, a local artist and teacher.

The program will begin at 7:30 p.m. with a painting of the month contest. A short business meeting will follow and then the evening will be given over to Pena for a critique clinic.

The Valley Artists Spring Show will be held the latter part of April at Liverty House.

Candidates' nights set

LIVERMORE — The week of Feb. 20 will be a busy one for city council candidates. Inter-Act will hold a candidates' night at 8 p.m., Feb. 22 at the Presbyterian Community Church, 100 Neal St., Pleasanton. Milt Woolley, Inter-Act president, will moderate.

Specific questions being asked of the candidates will be "What kinds of roles should local government take in relation to human services?" and "To what extent do you think revenue sharing, community development and general funds should be used to support human services?"

An open question period of one hour will follow. Inter-Act is a coalition of 75 human service agencies.

The Livermore Chamber of Commerce will sponsor a luncheon at noon on Feb. 21 at the Holiday Inn for candidates. And on Feb. 23 the League of Women Voters will hold a candidates' night at 7:30 p.m. at Granada High Union.

The Tri-Valley Republican Assembly will sponsor a candidates' night for both Pleasanton and Livermore candidates tonight, 7:30 p.m. at the Vinwood Lodge, 35 Fenton St., Livermore. The public is invited.

Bandettes take honors

The Livermore High School Bandettes; majorettes, baton flags and tall flag carriers, finished second last weekend in competition at Clovis High School, Clovis. Future competitions include this week's at Mission San Jose High School and later contests Ygnacio Valley, Mt. Eden and Irvington High Schools.

Quake test

PIRU (AP) — Santa Felicia Dam absorbed the small earthquake-like jolt with hardly a quiver.

A 400-pound lead weight wobbling around a motor's spindle sent a shiver through the massive earthen dam Tuesday. It was like a tiny earthquake in a test to enable scientists to learn how dams respond in quakes.

Sensitive seismographs registered the force of the rotating weight on top of the 300-foothigh dam that blocks Piru Creek to form Lake Piru, about 40 miles northwest of Los Angeles.

Otherwise, there was no noticeable effect on the 6-million-ton structure.

Vocational week

Vocational Education Week has been proclaimed in Livermore for Feb. 12-18 to draw attention to the vocational programs serving 75 percent of the secondary students in the Livermore Valley Unified School District. Yesterday the proclamation was read by city councilman John Staley (left) to superintendent Leo Croce, Granada High School teachers Lois Franklin, Eleanor Sahlin and Nick Ditota (vocational education head) and students Tracey Nelson, Mott Watson and Scott Morton. Other activities in the week will include a Rotary Club lunch at the Rancher Restaurant Feb. 15 and the Lion's Club lunch Feb. 16.

Success outside the big city

Some performers think that New York City is the only place a performer can have a "big career," but Sarah Franklin finds that a satisfying classical career is possible while living right here in Pleasanton.

Sarah Franklin is Living proof that it is possible to have a career as a professional singer without the big city life one often associates with such a career.

While lauded by critics she chose the suburban life and marriaqe and successfully bridged the gap between New York City opportunities and the quiet suburban life while maintaining an on-going' exciting classical singing career and a happy marriage.

This last December, Sarah sang the Messiah with the Oakland Symphony, and she has several dates upcoming, including a concert Feb. 19 at St. Mary's Cathedral in San Francisco in which she will sing as the featured soprano soloist with DeAnza Chorale. She will also sing on Feb. 26 for the Alameda Mozart Festival and on March 17 at Flint Center in Cupertino where she will sing with the DeAnza Chorale in a program identical to the one on Feb. 19.

Her voice has been described bv critics as "pure, beautifully focused." In the past she has sung with the St. Louis Symphony and with several major concert groups in the New York area. Locally she will sing at the Feb. 11 Arts and Flowers Dance sponsored by the Livermore Cultural Arts Council.

Pleasanton is very centrally located for the work she does, says Sarah, who sings on a free-lance basis, without a manager or agent. Her work is not mainly opera, but more as a recitalist who does oratorios and concert work, with chamber groups, in churches, and with symphony orchestras.

Since moving here about a year ago with her ad executive husband Bruce Battey, of Lutat, Battey and Associates of San Jose, Sarah has become very involved in private voice teaching but she says she still wants to perform as much as time will allow. Last March she sang a concert with William Warfield in Logan Utah, at Utah State Universi"But I enjoy being with my husband," says Sarah, "and if one gets too deeply involved in a musical career, you can spend 80 to 90 percent of your time on the road." She acknowledges that that could put a strain on a marriage.

But Sarah feels she can have the "same artistic standards, and still enjoy performing here in the Bay Area."

"I love music very much," says Sarah. "It's something I love to do, an expression of life." But she adds, "I guess I just put my homelife first.

The West Virginia-born singer goes on to explain, "If you're to have a big career in this country it's very difficult to do, but it is possible. There are many sacrifices, especially in my field, much dedication." And she adds that if you really want a big career, New York is the place to go.

But, even those singers who stay in New York City, says Sarah, have their difficulties, and it is hard to earn a living there as a professional singer because there are not enough jobs for all the good singers, and the pay is not good, except for the very top singers.

"I'm so happy with my life the way I'm living it now," says the successful singer. But she adds this advice to would-be singers, "I feel that if people have this ambition, they need much more than talent. They need skill and certain connections. "Some people at Juilliard used to say: 'Be a singer if you must do it. You have to want it that badly, explains the Juilliard graduate.

She says the qualities of a good singer include the following, whether a professional, or not: A basically sound instrument (a good voice), the ability to carry a tune, the ability to hear a pitch and reproduce it (to sing it), a good sense of rhythm, the ability to coordinate all these things at one time, with ease, and one must be able to be relaxed enough to sing and enjoy it. One also must have stage presence, getting it all together.

Right now Sarah has 35 voice pupils, some of them in San Francisco, and a waiting list of those who wish to take lessons from her. She says she finds it difficult to squeeze into one day all the things she has to do.

"It's true there are greater opportunities there," says Sarah, "but I feel I can put my talent and skill to use here in the area where I live." Sarah cites the pressures of the city, and the difficulties of the big city life, too. And she says that a singer must have talent, ambition and good breaks, all working together well, to make it.

"I wanted to be here with my husband," says the singer, "I just decided that in my life, my marriage would come first. That doesn't mean I'm not going to sing. I'm going to sing as much as possible."

Sarah lived in New York for eight years, but she says she needed more than just music, more than just a career. "Interestingly enough," says Sarah, "now that I'm married and very happy in my personal life, I'm singing much better than I ever did before."

Aerobic dance

Keeping fit is a moving experience

Want to have fun while getting your body into good condition? Try aerobic dancing, the fitness program that is gaining popularity, a total exercise program designed to strengthen heart, lungs and the entire system to the tune of popular songs.

Classes, with dances choreographed by Jacki Sorensen, the originator of the scientifically designed exercise method, will be held on Mondays and Wednesdays, 1 to 2 p.m., starting Feb. 13 at Shannon Center, Dublin. Ruth Parrish, of Danville, will be the instructor.

The Aerobic Dancing program started in this area a year and a half ago with two classes in San Francisco. They proved so popular that there are now 40 classes in the Bay Area. There are 50,000 aerobic dance students in 23 states and two fereign countries.

An Air Force wife, Jacki Sorensen invented Aerobic Dancing in 1969 while her husband was in Puerto Rico. She organized a fitness program based on dancing, for the women on the base.

Jacki knew of Dr. Kenneth Cooper's book: "Aerobics," with its 12 minute stress test, and when she took the test she found that her dancing had been a great conditioner. She then combined the aerobic concept, that of total body conditioning, with her theatrical dance training, and the whole program was born.

She formed her own company, "Aerobic Dancing Incorporated," and started with classes in New Jersey. The program grew in popularity on the East Coast, and was brought to San piego, where it was again a great success. It was in San Diego that Ruth Parrish became involved in the fitness program.

Ruth, who describes herself as non-athletic, found the concept to be so much fun, and so extremely helpful as far as physical fitness was concerned, that she became an instructor. After moving from San Diego, to Danville, she wanted to continue the program here.

The instructors must pass certain qualifications, and they receive instructions in new dances every three months.

The whole point, says Ruth, is to keep people with the fitness program, as fitness must be on a continuing basis to be effective. Changing the dances every three months keeps the students interested.

All types of music are used, including current rock and roll, Broadway songs, boogie, Charleston and other music from the past. Each group of dances contain two or three ballad type songs.

The songs' explains the dancing instructor, are all choreographed in pairs, according to the parts of the body to be exercised. Each class session is designed to include dances which will exercise all parts of the body at one session.

The only dancing Ruth says she ever did was in high school when as a majorette she was required to take ballet lessons. They did a lot of production type numbers. But other than that she didn't previously think of herself as a "physical fitness" buff.

"Once people try Aerobic Dancing," says the mother of two, "they kind of get hooked."

"My husband is a jogger," says Ruth, "but it was boring to me." But then she got into Aerobic Dancing and now the jogging seems interesting to her because of the total body fitness idea of the Aerobic dancing.

"I'm interested in physical fitness now, and I like to see how far I can jog. Now, it's a challenge. I'd like to try the Bay-to-Breakers race."

More endurance for skiers, more endurance for tennis players, increased capacity of the heart, enabling it not to pump as har while performing as much work, are some of the positive results to be had from the Aerobic pancing programs, Ruth reveals.

As an example of how her own physical fitness has improved on the dancing program, Ruth reveals that as a beginning jogger it took her 18 minutes to run one and one half miles. But to pass the test to become an Aerobic Dancing instructor, one must run a mile and a half in 12 minutes. She says she really had to work to get her time down to 12 minutes. "I just kept trying to go faster," says Ruth.

Ruth speaks of building up endurance. She increased her distance first, in jogging, and then decreased the time.

Aerobic Dancing is for both men and women, says Ruth, and three dances are taught during the first hour-long class. At the 24th class, 13 dances are done, as the pace is faster and faster.

As a result of Aerobic Dancing, Ruth has become more sports oriented. She is learning tennis and learning to ski. She is also more interested in eating the proper diet and in learning more about being "fit." Ruth says her husband was not interested in her dancing at first, but after she demonstrated her new-found prowess in jogging, in which she kept up with him going three miles four days a week, he was impressed. In fact, says Ruth, "He's proud of that, I think."

She started originally in the Aerobic Dancing program "to prove to myself that for once I could do something sports-oriented, to prove I could do it because it's so strenuous."

Later on," she explains with a smile, "it was just because I enjoy it."

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm a married working woman. I recently became involved in the women's movement and it's opened my eyes to many things. I believe it's made my marriage and my life more meaningful. I never realized before that I've been dodging success on the job. I think my husband's been doing the same thing. I don't understand why any man who keeps talking, as he has, about how he wants to get ahead, would try to avoiid promotions. V.B.

DEAR V.B.: Both men and women can have trouble coping with success. The fear of success, especially for the men, often begins very early in life and is usualy totally unconscious. One of the most frequent causes of this fear in a man is a hidden feeling that if he goes to the top, he will embarrass his father who may not have been so successful. This fear can be very powerful even when the father is dead and even if the fear is completely unrealistic.

A man may feel that if he takes a certain promotion of if he applies for a particular job, he'll be competing with his father. He may perceive competition to be a deadly game where someone is always injured or bruised.

Women sometimes fear competition and success for much the same reasons. Dr. Matina Horner, psychology professor at Harvard, fells that women are still anxious about success and it causes many to drop out of school, to get married to have a baby at crucial ponts in their career.

Fear of success is not the same as a will to fail. The former usually afflicts bright, educated women of middle-class professional parents. Such women often experience a deep conflict between their desire to achieve and the social system that questions the "feminity" of such desires.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: There's a woman in my office I've grown to like very much. She has a wonderful sense of humor and I've been thinking of asking her out. But one thing bothers me—she wears so much eye makeup. I can't stand this. It reminds me of cheap women and everything she's not. Do you think I could mention this to her before I ask her out? If she's going to wear so much eye shadow and mascara, I'd be embarrassed to be seen with her. W. K.

DEAR W.K.: I think you're on a very dangerous ground if you mention her makeup before—or for that matter, after —you take her out. After all, this is as personal as the way you wear your hair. She has a right to choose whether or not to wear eye makeup. If it's as terrible as you seem to feel, I'm surprised the boss hasn't been disturbed by it. I don't mean that the boss would have any more right than you to comment unless, of course, it related to how the others receive her in relation to work. If she has eye makeup down to her ankles, then it could well stand in the way of good public relations.

You friend also may use it as a screen to withdraw behind so she can feel greater privacy. She may be using it to cover or cope with extreme shyness.

You might consider the possibility that you are overreacting for some special reasons of your own. If you're really secure within yourself, why would it matter what a woman wore?

Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Two years ago I found out that I was a diabetic. I am almost 81. I went to the hospital for tests and had a test made this week. My cholesterol is normal. My blood sugar of late has been 124 to 141 and the last 138.

Now my doctor tells me at my age he would prefer it to be around 150. At that count he says that I am not so apt to have a heart attack. This doctor has a very large practice.

Another doctor insists the sugar count should be held at 125. Will you please give me your advice? I seldom eat anything with sugar in it.

DEAR READER — My advice is to eat a healthy normal diet, eliminate obesity or avoid it if you are already thin and stay light on your use of sugar and sweets. If your condition permits, take daily walks and enjoy yourself.

Your won't get an agreement on what your blood sugar really should be for your age. That in itself means at the levels you have it is not very important.

Drs. Jurgen Steinke and George Thorn of Harvard write in the latest edition of Harrison's Principles of Internal Medicine for medical students and doctors that the two hour level in people over 80 may be normal about 160. The point they make is that the glucose levels are higher each decade after age 50.

Despite this authorative source I must say that we often learn that because a finding is common in the population does not mean it is desirable. To illustrat, a modest amount of obesity is widespread in our society, but it is certainly not conducive to good health. So, I am not certain that the higher levels suggested as normal in older people are really compatible with optimal health. They may just be common in those age groups but so is heart and vascular disease and a lot of medical problems you would like to avoid.

That leaves me where I started in observing that your levels are certainly not alarming — either too high or too low, and I think you should not be overly concerned about them.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What are the symptoms of pregnancy? I am not sure if I am or not, but suspect I am. I have an enlarged stomach, late period, heaviness in the stomuach, and have a craving for soda crackers in the middle of the night, despite the fact I used to hate them. I had intercourse about a month ago — three times. I'm only a teenager. Please help, as I am worried.

DEAR READER — You have identified both some of the main symptoms and the cause. During the early stages of pregnancy a chemical test has to be done to determine if you are pregnant or not. Your doctor could do this for you.

If you have a good relationship with your mother by all means talk to her.

An influential friend will be instrumental in helping you to further your ambitions this coming year. His methods are unusual, but he'll know how to get results.

AQUARIUS (Jan.20-Feb.19) Prudence is a must today so that your extravagance doesn't offset your gains. You're adept at acquisition, but equally adroit at squandering.

PISCES (Feb.20-March 20) It's a bit difficult to stay on the track today. Your good intentions could be swept aside because you're too easily swayed.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Lack of imagination isn't your trouble today. The problem is that you may be overly sold on some of your more illogical dreams.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Someone will be flying false colors today. The bargain he offers you because you're a pal may not be so nifty after all.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) The targets you have for today are worthy ones, but busybodies could cause complications. Your aims and theirs won't be in concert.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Generosity is a noble virtue, but it should be seasoned with wisdom. Unfortunately, today you might give too much to the ungrateful.

LEO (July 23-Aug.22) Taking a gamble on something that a friend was lucky at is like buying pie in the sky today. There's no guarantee you'll repeat his performance.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept.22) Today you'll be eager to please everyone you encounter. Disappointments will be minimized by realizing that you can't be all things to all people.

LIBRA (Sept.23-Oct.23) Where profit is the motive, you're quite shrewd today, but don't do anything that would violate your nobler standards.

SCORPIO (Oct.24-Nov.22) Pleasurable pursuits costing an arm and a leg aren't for you today. Select activities less bruising on the budget.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov.23-Dec. 21) You're good at things today that can be accomplished on the initial effort. However, you might fall short in situations calling for patience or a second try.

CAPRICORN (Dec.22-Janr 19) Resist temptations today to pass on hearsay or just plain gossip. Say nothing of another that you wouldn't want said of you.

Today's slam is easy to bid when you see all the cards. It is almost impossible to bid at the table. The writer, who used it as an example, explained the bidding by pointing out that North's jump to three spades was highly invitational, but not forcing.

South's four-club bid was a slam try below game. North's four-heart call showed the ace of hearts and denied the ace of diamonds, so South signed off at four spades.

At this point in time, North who had bid his full values and maybe a trifle more would have quit in real life. Here, he went past game with a five-diamond bid. As the writer pointed out. North was showing second round diamond control.

This overbid was enough for South. He bid six spades.

South won the first trick with the ace of clubs and would have claimed six, if trumps had broken 2-1. As it was, he had to draw three rounds of trumps. That meant that he could only ruff one diamond, but South was able to cope with that. He cashed the king of clubs, led to dummy's ace of hearts, discarded the four of clubs on the king of hearts, led the 10 of clubs from dummy. If East covers with the queen, South ruffs. If East doesn't cover, South discards a diamond. He then ruffs his last diamond with dummy's last trump and is home with six.

Valentine paradise

Wendy Sullivan and Barbara Donnelly gear up for Valentines' drawing at Rocky Road Depot

Valentine's Day is just around the corner and there's not a more appropriate place to celebrate this lovers' holiday than Rocky Road Depot located next to Safeway in Pleasanton's Amador shopping center.

As a matter of fact, partners Wendy Sullivan and Barbara Donnelly have drummed up a special event that will save some lucky person the trouble of finding a Valentine's Day treat.

Next Tuesday at 10 a.m., they will pull a name out of a jar and present that person a one-pound box of assorted chocolates. Entries can be found in The Times or filled out at the Rocky Road Depot. The winner does not have to be present at the drawing.

Rocky Road has everything you need for Valentine's Day from an assortment of chocolate candies to Dreyer's ice cream. They are open everyday from 10:30 1 a.m. to 8 p.m. and until 9 on weekends.

Owners outraged

Restaurants flunk inspection

DENVER (AP) — When a newspaper here printed a list of restaurants that scored poorly in a city sanitation inspection, restauranteurs reacted in outrage. Now the city attorney has sealed such records, saying their publication is not in the "public interest."

The "Low Score List" that appeared last Sunday in the Rocky Mountain News, Denver's morning newspaper, included 95 restaurants that had scores of less than 70 out of a possible 100 points in Denver Health Department inspections in December.

U.S. Food and Drug Administration guidelines rate a score of 80 to 100 as good, while 60 to 79 indicates problems and below 60 is considered unacceptable.

In the Denver list, the San Marco Room, one of the city's best known and most expensive restaurants, scored 50 points in an inspection Dec. 6. Reinspected Jan. 16, the San Marco Room had a score of 52. Ordered to clean up or face a possible shut-down order, the restaurant scored 81 points in an inspection two days later.

Some of the city's other premier restaurants had similar scores. Fast-food restaurants had the best inspection scores.

Health Department officials attributed that to standards set by the national chains that run them.

Outraged protests from restaurant owners followed swiftly on the appearance of the list in print.

"It was a pot shot at 95 restaurants," said Barry Cohen, owner of the Chicago Speakeasy, whose establishment made the list with an inspection score of 65.

The owners said the public would fail to understand the meaning of the scores. They said deficiencies noted by health inspectors often were corrected immediately and that many violations, such as cracks in walls, had nothing to do with food or safety.

On Thursday, officials of the Health Department met with members of the city attorney's office. A Rocky Mountain News reporter was denied entrance on the grounds it would violate attorney-client privilege.

After the meeting, an assistant city attorney announced that the inspection records would not be available to the public.

A haunted restaurant can't shake the chill

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (AP) — There is a decided chill in the room. Yes, the place is definitely haunted. A haunted restaurant.

"Most of the people who ask to see the room know a girl was murdered there," said Luis Villacorta, the restaurant's manager, "but most of them don't know the details."

"We've had heating engineers in to see about the draftiness, but nothing they do works. The room stays chilly."

The room was once an upstairs bedroom in a lovely old home built in 1749. The house, improved over the years, remains the sturdy nucleus of a restaurant called the Wedgewood Inn, the storied bedroom now used for private dinner parties.

Yes, murder most foul was done there, and the details are more chilling than the eerie draft.

In the Early spring of 1833, a recent immigrant named Antoine LeBlanc took a job with the Samuel Sayre family as a field hand, the only trade he knew.

But, as Antoine later explained through an interpreter, he resented Sayre treating him like a field hand. So, on a chilly Sunday morning in May, he enticed Samuel Sayre and his wife, Sarah, to the stable, took up a shovel, bashed in their heads and hid their bodies in a manure pile.

Next, he went up to the bedroom and similarly dispatched their sleeping servant girl, Phebe, and made off with the silverware.

A possee caught Antoine heading for the Newark docks and fetched him back to Morristown. The jury took 20 minutes to decide his fate.

The date of the hanging was set, Sept. 16, the scaffold built, and 12,000 people crowded the village green for the big event.

One of them was a professor from Princeton who, with the court's permission, stood by to try out a new invention called a battery. He wanted to see whether he could jolt Antoine back to life, hoping to advance science with sort of a reverse elecrocution.

That failing, a surgeon, Dr. Isaac Canfield, took over.

Dr. Canfield's job, by order of the court in pronouncing sentence, was to cut up Antoine into little pieces. He did as directed, and Antoine was finally laid to rest in a small box.

Well, not all of Antoine. Somebody else had got permission to skin him, and that was done. His hide was tanned and wallets offered later as momentoes of the occasion.

A half century later, when Morristown had grown into a fashionable country place for the rich and the cultured, a civic minded citizen named A. W. Cutler made a hit at a YMCA fund raiser by exhibiting, alongside a goblet that had been Napoleon's and a necklace that had been Josephine's, one authentic Antoine LeBlanc wallet.

Rumor had it that other wallets exist today, hidden away in attics. If not, all that remains of the memory of Antoine LeBlanc is a chilly room in a quiet restaurant.

Enjoy your dinner.

Soccer titanic reslated again

The Dublin-Amador Valley soccer match has been rescheduled for tomorrow on the AV field, weather permitting.

The match, which will probably decide the East Bay Athletic League championship, was scheduled for Wednesday but the rainy weather postponed it.

Dublin is 11-1-1 on the season and Amador Valley is 10-1-1. The Dons also have a make-up game to be played against Monte Vista.

Assuming that AV beats Monte Vista (which is 4-9 on the season) the Dons will have to beat the Gaels to win the championship. If the two teams tie then Dublin gets the bid to play the Catholic League champion because it defeated Amador Valley 3-0 earlier in the season. However, both teams would share the EBAL crown if Granada loses its last match.

In other soccer action Foothill (8-4) is scheduled to play San Ramon (0-12) today in Danville. Tuesday's Foothill-Granada match was postponed and has not been rescheduled yet Granada is 9-2-2 and in third place, one point behind AV. A Granada win and Amador losses to MV and Dublin would give the Mats second place.

Bristol will coach base for SF

SAN FRANCISCO — Except for the hiring of Dave Bristol as a base coach and the signing of three players, two of them rookies, there was nothing earth-shaking for the San Francisco Giants to announce at their press conference yesterday at Candlestick Park.

Bristol, 44, comes to the Giants after eight years as a manager in the majors at Cincinnati, Milwaukee and Atlanta. His appointment completes a coaching staff of four under manager Joe Altobelli.

Co-Owner Bob Lurie also announced that veteran catcher Marc Hill has signed a three year contract and that rookies Richard Murray, an infielder, and pitcher Ed Plank have agreed to terms under one year pacts.

Bristol, who was fired by Atlanta last October, comes to the Giants with a reputation for developing young talent. Pete Rose and Tommy Helms broke in under Bristol in the minors and credit for their development in the majors, along with others including Lee May, Gary Nolan and Tony Perez, goes to the new Giants' coach.

Altobelli said that Bristol and Jimmy Davenport will direct traffic at first and third bases when the season opens, although not necessarily in that order. "We'll determine that in spring training," the second-year San Francisco skipper remarked.

Altobelli, who probably established a new major league record for different starting lineups last season while using a platoon system, said he plans to profit by that experience and go with a set lineup when the 1978 seasonopens.

"We had to find out what the players are capable of doing and this was my way of doing it," Altobelli explained.

This time around, however, the Giant manager feels his infield "is pretty well set" with Willie McCovey at first base, Bill Madlock moving from third to second base, Johnnie Lemaster playing shortstop and Darrell Evans at third base.

"It's time to find out if Johnnie can do the job after being around for a coupl of years. If he can do it on defense, Bill nd Darrell should be able to carry him th their bats," Altobelli said.

The outfield positions are up for grabs among Larry Herndon, back from an injury; Derrell Thomas, Terry Whitfield, Gary Thomasson, and Jack Clark, the manager reported. "I figure it's time that at least three of these five young outfielders come out of their shells and establish themselves," Altobelli said.

Catching should be adequate, he noted, with Hill, Gary Alexander and Mike Sadek back from last season's varsity.

The strong point of the Giants, in Altobelli's opinion, is pitching. He reeled off the names of John Montefusco, "who should bounce back with a big year after being hampered by injuries;" Ed Halicki, "Capable of matching, or bettering his 16 wins of last season;" Jim Barr, "that 12-16 record of his last season might easily have been turned around to 16-12 with a little luck," and Bob Knepper, rookie lefthander "who came on strong at the end of the season."

Lynn McGlothen, acquired in a trade from St. Louis last year, remains a question mark after a down year with the Giants. "I've been in contact with McGlothen and he's throwing a lot. But he hasn't cut loose yet this year," the manager reported.

Altobelli also feels his bull pen ranks with the best with Gary Lavelle, Randy Moffitt, Dave Heaverlo and Charlie Williams back in action. Southpaw John Curtis will be available for relief work or as a spot starter, Altobelli noted.

The San Francisco manager is not overly concerned by the fact that his club did not acquire any players in the free agent market. "We won 75 games last year with a young club and threw away another 15-20 with mistakes that go with inexperience," he commented. "My goal this year is to try and improve on those games we threw away and finish up near the magic mark of 100 wins."

It's not impossible. For instance, the Baltimore Orioles won 97 in the American League last season with 10 young players in their lineup. And Lurie isn't about to fork out a couple of million or so to a so-called superstar in the free agent market.

At least, that's one thing he and Charlie Finley of the Oakland A's agree on. Lurie had nothing new to offer on the attempted move of Oakland to Denver other than to say, "it's still up in the air and I guess the next couple of days will decide it."

Graham tops Hope Classic

PALM SPRINGS — David Graham, playing in only his second tournament of the year, shot a 6-under-par 66 Wednesday to take a one-stroke lead in the first round of the 90-hole Bob Hope Desert Classic.

Playing what is considered the toughest of the four courses being used for the tournament, Bermuda Dunes, the 31-year Graham took the lead over Peter Oosterhuis, Dave Eichelberger, Vic Regaldo and Fuzzy Zoeller, with all but Zoeller playing Bermuda Dunes. Zoeller played Indian Wells.

Rik Massengale, the defending champion who played in a foursome with former President Gerald R. Ford and host Bob Hope, shot a 68 at La Quinta. Keith Fergus also came home with a 68 at La Quinta while Larry Nelson had a 68 at Eldorado and Tom Purtzer had the same score at Bermuda Dunes.

Tom Watson, the top winner of 1977 who already has won the Bing Crosby and the Tucson Open this year, and Arnold Palmer, who has won here five times, played LaQuinta and led a pack of 10 who shot three-under-par 69s — seven of them playing the Indian Wells course.

Seventy-one of the 128 pros shot par or better, including Hubert Green, winner in Hawaii last week who shot a 71, and Lee Trevino and Gene Littler, who had 72s.

● Summary in Scoreboard

Storm still a factor

The effects of the East Coast snowstorm still were being felt on sports schedules yesterday. College basketball games were by snow-clogged roads and disrupted travel schedules.

With the Holy Cross basketball team unable to fly out of Worcester, Mass., to South Bend, Ind., the Crusaders' game against fourth-ranked Notre Dame was postponed. A Notre Dame spokesman said there are no plans to reschedule the game.

Giants hire old nemesis

SAN FRANCISCO — Maury Wills, a longtime Giant nemesis as base stealing champion for the Los Angeles Dodgers, will join the team on a part-time basis club preisdent Robert Lurie reported Wednesday.

Wills will spend three weeks with the Giants in spring training concentrating on the areas of base running, base stealing and bunting.

During the season, he will visit Candlestick Park at least five times to work with the team and will also visit each minor league team twice during the season.

In addition, he will work with players next fall in the instructional league.

Wills has worked with several other major league teams on a similar part-time basis in the past.

USF mustn't lose

The University of San Francisco faces a near must-win situation when it takes on host Pepperdine of Malibu tonight in a West Coast Athletic Conference basketball game.

San Francisco is a game back of league-leading Nevada-Reno (the Dons are 4-2 and Reno is 5-1) in the WCAC race. Although the Dons will host Reno in their rematch a loss in the Southland will make that game virtually meaningless if Reno wins the rest of its contests.

In another WCAC battle tonight in Los Angeles Santa Clara (3-3) takes on Loyola.

Both USF and the Broncos are hampered by the flu. The Dons' only healthy players are seven-foot center Bill Cartwright and guard Rod Williams. Santa Clara missed star forward Kurt Rambis in the Northwest last weekend and guard Londale Theus is also hampered by the flu. Several of the SC reserves also have the flu.

On top of this, ace guard Eddie Joe Chavez sprained his ankle against Portland and is doubtful this week.

In Pacific Coast Athletic Association action tonight San Jose State hosts UC-Irvine tonight and plays powerful Fresno State Saturday. The Spartans upset University of the Pacific last Thursday but fell to the Tigers in Stockton to extend their road record to 0-12 this season.

Pacific is at Fresno State tonight and plays Irvine Saturday night in Stockton.

Dons survive upsets to win mat title

It started with zillions of hopeful wrestlers ...

The Amador Valley High School wrestling team rode out its season in style, and as predicted, walked away with the first place trophy from the East Bay Athletic League Wrestling Championships Tuesday night.

"I felt we'd take first, but of course that's easier to say in hindsight," Amador coach Ron Blanton said elatedly.

"I was fairly confident that we'd do it. We've been beating those teams all year long," he said.

The Dons were undefeated in the EBAL, and finished the season with a 7-0 record.

Amador collected 166 teams point in the tournament, and Livermore followed with 123. The surprising Monte Vista squad checked in at third with 122. The host school, Foothill, finished with 82.

The tournament wasn't a runaway for any of the schools until the finals though.

The final rounds of the evening were made even more exciting by the number of upsets.

California's 123 pound Jim Beaman, little heard from until Tuesday night, made a dazzling premiere. The unseeded Beaman finally met his match when he was rolled over by top-seeded Roy Davis from Granada in the championship round. Davis pinned the tough grappler in the second period, but Beaman is sure to make ripples in the upcoming North Coast Tournament.

Forced to take an unexpected second place, Livermore's Darryl Hansen was finally upset by Sean Kennedy from Dublin in a 5-2 decision in overtime. Kennedy, named Outstanding Wrestler in the upper weights, quickened the pace considerably in the OT, and managed to contain the extremely determined Hansen.

Amador's 194 pound wrestler, Ernie Zumbach, was also in for a surprise in the final round. Zumbach, undefeated in the EBAL season, was upset by an agressive Dave Farfan from Livermore.

Farfan wasted no time, and had a quick two-point takedown in the opening seconds of the match, that set the pace.

"He just got sloppy. Mentally, he let down," Blanton explained.

"He could have rode it out, but he was going for the pin. That's alright, but he didn't wrestle to his potential. Farfan wrestled a smart match," Blanton noted.

Farfan readily utilized mistakes by Zumbach, and took advantage of every opportunity.

"But the best wrestler doesn't always win either," Blanton said.

One of Amador's best wrestlers did win though, and very convincingly.

Steve Potts, top-seeded in the 115 division, eliminated Shanner Grisham of Dublin 8-2 in the final round. Potts was seemingly unimpressed with the victory though.

"Potts is never satisfied with himself," Blanton noted.

"It's very difficult to wrestle a kid when he's stalling. Potts wrestled a very sound match. He gets frustrated in the position he's in, number one I mean. Nevertheless, he's an excellent wrestler," Blanton said in praise.

Chris Hartley from San Ramon was named the Outstanding Wrestler in the lower weight divisions. The top seeded grappler took first after pinning the Dons Marc Hanna in the second round. Hartley dominated Hanna all during the match, and finally wore him down.

"Hartley did a super iob. A lot of credit goes to him, but I don't think anything like that will happen again. It was Hartley's turn and you can't take anything away from him," Blanton said respectfully.

In perhaps that most exciting and physical match of the evening, Naish Piazza from Livermore continued to dominate the 148 weight divison as he slugged it out with Mitch Heredia from Amador. Piazza took first with an 8-2 decision, including three penalty points. Heredia was awarded two.

Amidst intermittent booing and oohs and aahs from the packed gym, Piazza and Heredia battled it through with a knees in the gut and rabbit punches. Heredia's eyes became firery, when he tasted the few drops of blood that dripped from his nose.

Heredia gave up a four point move early in the match, and was forced to play catch from then on.

"I can see where Mitch got frustrated. Piazza is a very methodical wrestler. He gets his points quickly, and forced Mitch to try and come back. It was obviously a very physical match, but I thought the officials could have had better control," Blanton said.

"But it was definitely one of the better matches of the night," he added.

"Piazza is a good wrestler but so's Mitch," Blanton stated.

Mike Larsen took another first for the Dons with a 7-5 victory over Toby Prehn from Monte Viste, in the 141 class.

"He was a little bit conservative, but then he opened up his offense. He had reckless abandon in his blood," Blanton said.

"He was trying to protect something. It's interesting how he changed his tempo in the middle of the match. That's a sign of an excellent wrestler," Blanton predicted.

In the 157 class, Cal's Ken Major had a close victory over Norman Oldroyd from Monte Viste.

Darryl Hansen's twin brother Dale, 168 pounds, had more success than his sibling, as he took an easy first with a second period pin on the Dons Mike Miller.

The heavyweight division, which drew four forfeits in the early rounds, was taken by Monte Viste's Dave Frohnen with a narrow 8-6 decision over Jeromy King from Dublin.

Cowgirl JV's triumph

Livermore High School's junior varisty girls basketball team kept pace with undefeated Amador Valley Tuesday with a 31-20 over Dublin, breaking a tie with the Gaels for second place.

The 'Pokes, now 6-2, were led by Carolyn Miller, who scored 14 points. Michelle Sequeira added ten for the Gaels, who trailed in every quarter.

Amador, menawhile, stayed on top with a 39-20 win over California. Julie Waldron led the way with 13 points.

Track closed

Thoroughbred training activities ground to halt at the Alameda County Fairgrounds Tuesday and have not yet been resumed.

The rains that pounded not only the valley, but the entire Bay Area, have wracked havoc with the thoroughbred meeting at Golden Gate Fields, forcing five turf stakes races onto the grass and limiting training.

The Pleasanton track had been listed as "good" on days when Golden Gate, and other training centers, were called "slow" or worse.

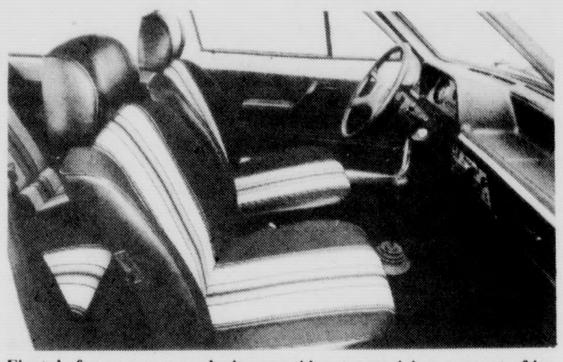
Ford fiesta earns high EPA fuel ratings

Billed as the "controlled action car from Germany, Ford's Fiesta has achieved high California Environmental Protection Agency fuel-economy ratings.

Tests show the car got 43 miles per gallon highway, 30 miles per gallon city and 35 miles per gallon combined cityhighway driving.

"It's a car that must be driven to be appreciated," says William Benton, Ford Motor Company vice president and Ford Division general manger.



Fiesta's four-passenger design provides a surprising amount of interior room. The optional sport group interior includes fully reclining low-back bucket seats, colorful Cadiz cloth upholstery, brushed aluminum instrument panel appliques and four-spoke steering wheel.

Built at Ford of Germany's Saarlouis assembly plant, the front-wheel-drive Fiesta is powered by a 1.6-liter Kent overhead-valve engine teamed with a fully synchronized floor-mounted four-speed manual transmission.

Company officials say the car's driveability is "enhanced" by rack-and-pinion steering for more precise control and a MacPherson-strut front suspension system for improved directional stability. Heavy-duty shocks and a rear stabilizer bar are optional.

Standard equipment includes Michelin steel-belted radial-ply tires, front disc brakes, aluminum bumpers, high-back bucket seats, carpeting and a fold-down rear seat.

Air conditioning, tinted glass, a rear window wiper-washer, sporty cast aluminum wheels and power front disc brakes are options.

Built on a 90-inch wheelbase, the car weighs less than 1,800 pounds. Its front-wheel-drive tranverse-mounted engine design places more weight over the driving wheels for grood traction, and saves space for additional passenger and luggage room. Rear seating, is good with more leg room than in most other cars in Fiesta's class.

Even with the rear seat in an upright position, Fiesta has nearly seven cubic feet of usable luggage capacity and with the rear seat down there are 29 cubic feet of cargo space. The rear hatchback door extends down almost to the bumper for easy loading and unloading of groceries or luaggage.

And visibility is good because of the car's short hood, slim roof pillars and rear-door glass.

Clutch and brakes are self-adjusting, and the steering system, suspension ball joints and front-wheel bearings do not require scheuled maintenance.

Benton says the Fiesta represents the most extensive new-car program in the history of the Ford Motor Company — an $800-million, seven-year investment in research, design, development and new plant facilities.

Fiesta is offered in one model—a three-door hatchback—with four trim levels: standard, decor, sport and Ghia.

The decor group option includes trim and functional extras such as intermittent windshield wipers, electric rear-window defroster, rear-seat package tray, fully reclining low-back bucket seats, special cloth-and-vinyl or all-vinyl upholstery, woodtone instrumentl panel appliques, bright window moldings and black bodyside tape stripes.

Fiesta sport group option includes decor group features as well as a tachometer and trip odometer, sports suspension system, four-spoke steering wheel, "S" bodyside tape stripes, bright wheel trim rings and bolts, extra-wide 4.5-inch wheel rims, and distinctive Cadiz cloth-and-vinyl or all-vinyl seat upholstery.

Ford's German-built Fiesta features a long list of standard equipment, including rack-and-pinion steering, steel-belted radial tires, front disc brakes, a fold-down rear seat, high-back bucket seats and carpeted interior. Four trim levels are available—standard, decor, Ghia and sport (shown here).

DIRECTOR NAMED

WEST HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Robert A. Harper has been named director of development for the University of Hartford's Hartt College of Music.

Hartt officials said Harper would plan and direct fund-raising programs in conjunction with Hartt director Donald Mattran.

Small-car market now husky teenager

There's no doubt about it—the trend is toward small cars. And statistics support the observation.

According to a Ford Motor Company spokesman (the firm sells the Ford produced German Fiesta), in 1968, small cars represented 25.8 per cent of the total industry.

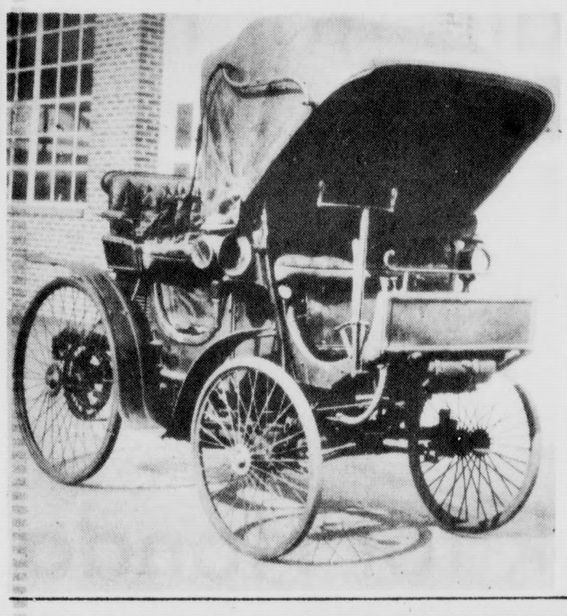
"By 1975, that share had increased to 52 per cent, or a little more than three points a year over the eight-year span."

Why the change?

The official says federally mandated standards, inflation, and a trend to multiple-car families encouraged and will "continue this trend."

What about the future?

"The small-car market is not only alive and well, it is a growing husky teenager."



For more than 70 years Peugot has been known as an outstanding car—and with the new popularity of the Peugeot 604 SL, the firm's reputation still holds true. First introduced in Septebmer, 1975, the Peugeot 604 has received plaudits from owners and perhaps her most exigent critics: European automotive journalists. Rave reviews continue to pour in. Meanwhile, in Pottstown, Pa., William Pollock occasionally displays his 1891 Peugeot (right), believed to be the oldest operating automobile in the United States.

After a year without an intermediate coupe, Mercedez-Benz has introduced a new five-passenger model in two new versions. The 280CS is powered by a fuel-injected six-cylinder gasoline engine and the 300CD carries a five-cylinder diesel engine, identical to the powerplant in the highly successful 300D sedan.

For '78, Mercedes-Benz adds two new coupes

Two new coupes, one of them powered by a five-cylinder diesel engine, are part of the Mercedes-Benz passenger car line for 1978.

The two coupes are the 300CD, with the diesel engine and the 280CE, equipped with a fuel-injected six-cylinder gasoline engine.

Both vehicles, which are outwardly identical except for the model designation plates on their trunk lids, are based on the new Mercedes-Benz intermediate sedan series introduced in 1976 and which includes four models for the North American market.

They come with four-wheel power disc brakes, automatic transmission, power steering, automatic climate control, central locking syste, cruise control, AMFM stereo radio, quartz-crystal clock, tinted glass, fog lights, power windows, six-way adjustable front bucket seats and radial tires as standard.

In addition to the two coupes and four intermediate sedans, Mercedes-Benz offers three large sedan models, plus a larger couple and a couperoadster.

The intermediate sedans are led by the two diesels, the four-cylinder 240D and the five-cylinder 300D. Gasonline-engined sedans in this range are the four-cylinder 230 (not available in the West), and the fuel-injected six-cylinder 280E.

The two other sports models are the limited-edition 450SLC, which is a V8-powered four-seater coupe, and the 450SL couperoadster, also with V8 engine and with both hard and soft tops as standard equipment.

The larger sedans include the six-cylinder 280SE, plus the V8-powered long-wheelbase 450SEL, and the 6.9

Karlfried Nordmann, president of Mercedes-Benz of North America says the firm expects the same of diesel powered vehicles to continue to grow.

"We are most confident, because of our strong commitment to the diesel engine." For 1977 diesel sales represented 46 per cent of the firm's sales. This year he said "we are counting on this going up to 56 per cent."

"While others are making their cars smaller, we are able to continue with reasonably size dvehicles because of our choice of powerplants. In the diesel, we have an engine that not only provides good emission characteristics, but also excellent fuel consumption and perfomrnace."

More startling stunts — by Europe's top diver Remy Julienne — are being featured this year by Fiat Motors of North America to demonstrate the firm's cars as durable, reliable and responsive.

Top stunt drivers 'falls' for Fiat

It's certainly like no other commercial you've ever seen—there's someone driving a new car not only through water...but over a falls.

Why?

Simple, suggest officials of Fiat Motors of North America. To "demonstrate on television the reliability, durability and responsiveness of the Fiat automobiles sold in the United States."

Who's the brave soul behind the wheel? None other than Remy Julienne, who's been working with Fiat automobiles for a number of years.

Julienne, known as "The World's Greatest Living Stunt Driver," has done almost 150 feature films, where death-deying sequences are an important part of the story line.

Julienne gained TV fame in the U.S. during 1973 when his hair-raising driving exploits helped mark Fiat's automobiles. Even today, when he's introduced to an American, he's frequently reminded by his new acquaintance of his spectacular jump from rooftop to rooftop in a Fiat sedan.

The driver began his career on wheels as the Champion of the French Moto Cross in 1957 and 1958. His instinct to live on the razor-edge of danger moved him toward his career as a strunt driver—work he began full-time in 1964.

New front look for Honda

A distinctive new front-end appearnace marks the 1978 line of Honda Civic automobiles.

The former split grille has been replaced by a single, louvered grille with a new Honda "H" medallion in the center. The "wider look" is accented by the elimination of the front parking and turn signal lights used on former models in favor of a new bumper with integrated parking and turn singal lights.

At the rear, the reversing lights and reflectors have been similarly integrated into the bumper.

The Civic front end also has been enhanced by changes to the hood, which now has lowered vents and a single intake for the heater.

As in previous years, Honda Civics are offered in two basic series—the 1488cc CVCC-powered Civics, offered in all 50 states, and the 1237cc Civic (carrying a "1200" nameplate) with air-injection engine, available everywhere except California.

Rear window defrosters and day-night mirrors are standard equipment on the Civic 1200 hatchback and Civic CVCC hatchback and wagon. On the 1977 models, these were standard features only on the Civic CVCC 5-speed.

Variety: key to '78 VWs

Variety is the key word for Volkswagen 1978.

According to company spokesmen, this year's line-up includes gasoline-and-diesel powered Rabbits, luxuriously appointed Dashers; sporty Sciroccos, and the classic VW Beetle convertibles and busses.

The '78 Rabbit with manual transmission, according to Environmental Protection Agency figures, delivers 38 miles per gallon on the highway and 25 miles a gallon in the city—a mile more per gallon than last year's models. The Rabbit diesel, the EPA's top-rated car, is getting better mileage this year, too—53 mpg highway, 40 mpg city.

All Rabbits have a large rear hatch which folds down to make a roomy cargo area. In addition, the Rabbic "C" model sports custom features as standard equipment chrome hubcaps, reclining front seats with integral headrests, and steel-belted radial tires.

The Rabbit "L" model equipment includes remote control outside mirrors, quartz clock, cigarette lighter, belt-line decor stripe and cut-pile carpeting.

The 1978 Dasher has a new look with dual headlights, restyled and lowered radiator grille, wrap-around front turn signals and a functional aerodynamic spoiler under the bumper. Upholstered seats are in crushed velour fabric with leatherette available as an option. The Dasher may be ordered with an optional sliding steel sunroof or air conditioning.

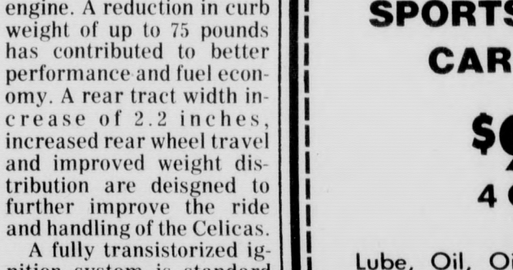
Technical improvements in the Dasher this year include a large booster for the standard-equipment power brakes and an increase in the swept area of the front disc brakes.

The front suspension has softer mounts on the lower control arm, stiffer springs and a new shock absorber valving, while the rear suspension has softer upper mounts for the shock absorbers, a stiffer stabilizer bar and new toe-in and camber settings.

The '78 Scirocco sports coupe has a new sleeker front end, restyled side and rear trim, a wood-lined dash board, remote control side view mirror and improved sound insulation. Under the skin it has a larger radiator and a bigger booster for the standard equipment power disc/drum brakes.

Known for its handling and performance (it zips from zero to 60 mph in 11.6 seconds, with a test track top speed of 103mph) the VW reports that the Scirocco delivers 38 miles per gallon on the highway and 25 mpg in the city, according to EPA estimates.

The VW bus has a quieter engine this year, and requires less maintenance, thanks to the use of hydraulic valve lifters which the company says eliminates the need for valve adjustments.



The 1978 Volkswagen line-up includes gasoline-and diesel-powered Rabbits that are more economical than ever and they're available in three versions that operate more quietly, smoothly and economically than previous models.

Toyota redesigns '78s

Headlining Toyota's 1978 model lineup are completely redesigned versions of the sporty and functional Celicas and the introduction is a top-of-the-line Cressida.

The three Celicas, the ST Sport Coupe, GT Sport Coupe and GT Liftback, feature futuristic aerodynamic styling and technical improvements that meet all federal safety and fuel economy standards for 1980.

The Celicas are powered by Toyota's 2.2-liter 20-R engine. A reduction in curb weight of up to 75 pounds has contributed to better performance and fuel economy. A rear tract width increase of 2.2 inches, increased rear wheel travel and improved weight distribution are deisgned to further improve the ride and handling of the Celicas.

A fully transistorized ignition system is standard for 1978 Celicas. The changes are designed to reduce maintenance costs and eliminate point and condenser replacement. And higher spark plug voltage contributes to reduced misfiring and longer service intervals.

Toyots's five-speed overdrive manual tansmission is standard on all Celicas, while an automatic transmission is available as an option on the ST Sport Coupe and the GT Liftback.

Exterior highlights include a new aerodynamic styling for all three models. Greater glass area has been incorporated into the Celica design along with a lower belt line to give all models a more sleek appearance and imropved driving visibility.

Onside the Celica, driver and passenger comfort and roominess have been improved by increasing front seat shoulder room and rear seat headroom. Lumbar support and seat tilt features have been added to the GT models, permistting a wider range of driving positions for improved comfort.

The new Cressida model features innovative styling and a long list of luxury standard features.

The Cressida features a new automatic transmission designed to improve fuel economy and acceleration.

'LX' the newest Accord by Honda

The Accord LX expands the list of standard equipment features offered on the Accord since its introduction in July, 1976.

Added as standard on the Accord LX are air conditioning, a rigid tonneau cover, a digital clock, an AM/FM radio with stereo cassette player, and steel-belted radial tires.

The LX also features a power-steering system with variable assist. The system gives full power assist at lower speeds for easy maneuverability, yet retains "feel of the road" at highway speeds.

As an extra touch of luxury, the LX is distinguished by a special tricot fabric trim interior in burgundy. It comes in two metallic exterior finished—Lausanne silver and Versailles maroon.

Like the regular Accord, the LX has a five-speed transmission with Hondamatic also available as an option.

Subaru refines models

Subaru of America offers added flair in its 1978 model cars.

Officials say modifications have been made largely as a results of research into the requirements of Americans.

Working with the philosophy that "one does not tinker with success," Subaru officials say changes for 1978 focus on "styling highlighted by the application of aerodynamic technology, interior convenience, comfort, safety, attractiveness and flexibility."

The front appearance of Subaru includes a redesigned front grille and ornament, repositioned combination lights and new bumper. The rear appearance is modified by the use of a redesigned tail light asembly and lowered trunk lid.

Interior modifications include a newly desgned instrument panel and steering wheel, and refinements to rear seat belts, floor mats, dimmer lighting switch, locking glove compartment and rear ashtray.

Television

In-depth movie reviews

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A movie review on TV often is but a two-minute slice of a local evening newscast, providing either critical sneers or the cry, "One of the year's 10 best."

But now, public TV station WTTW in Chicago has a half-hour series of movie reviews. It features critiques and clips of not one, but six new films, the reviews by two professional film grumblers.

It's "Sneak Previews," which the station now is offering the nation's public TV stations for a total of $226,000. That buys 18 shows, issued at the rate of two a month starting next October.

The co-hosts of the venture are Gene Siskel, for eight years the film critic of the Chicago Tribune, and Roger Egbert of the Chicago Sun-Times, the only film critic ever to win a Pulitzer Prize.

The series now is in its second season locally, having begun with three pilot shows taped during the 1975-76 season, according to its producer, WTTW's Thea Flaum.

She says about 65 percent of the show has clips of six new flicks. The rest is talk about the films, plus two 30-second assaults on what Egbert and Siskel consider 'the dog of the month."

Of late, she adds, the two also have begun giving reviews of theatrical films about to strike for the first time on network television, such as "Midway," aired by NBC earlier this week.

The series is offered Public Broadcasting Service stations under PBS' program cooperative plan, in which stations are asked to pay a share of shows offered them by the national cooperative.

However, says producer Flaum, "Sneak Previews" already has been inspected by 180 stations nationally. They got it free this season as an inducement to financially back another round, she says.

"It's difficult to describe an idea like this on paper," she explained by phone from Chicago. "It sounds like two critics 'discussing the cinema' and what could be more deadly?

"So the idea of giving it to the various regional networks was a pump-priming device, to give them the opportunity to really see how good it is."

Initally, the movie studios just provided their selected clips of their new wares for the show, she said, but now fork over specific scenes sought by the program's critics-in-residence.

"We've never had any difficulty in getting the studios to give us something," she said. "What's different now is that they give us what we want."

Some critics orate from chairs on a bare stage. Egebert and Siskel do it from a theater balcony set in WTTW's studios, she said.

And they don't use obscure film jargon or such critical blather phrases as "profoundly moving" or "tour de force," she added.

"No, there's none of that," she laughed. "And no technical 'discussions of the cinema.' What they do is tell you something about the movie, what's good or bad about it, and whether it's worth seeing — and all in very straight-forward language."

Good mileage in White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter Administration isn't forgetting its "war on limousines." The White House motor pool is trading in cars that waste fuel for a fleet of smaller vehicles, including Detroit's newest subcompact sedan.

When President Carter was inaugurated, he inherited 29 Chrysler Newport sedans used to ferry senior presidential aides to and from work. The Newports, with 400 cubic inch V-8 engines, were rated by the Environmental Protection Agency as getting 13 miles per gallon of gasoline in combined city-highway driving.

The President ordered his kinsman and chief staff economizer, Hugh Carter Jr., to end portal-to-portal chauffeured service for White House assistants. Moreover, the younger Carter was directed to trim the size of the fleet.

Ferry service was ended for all except Zbigniew Brzezinski, the President's assistant for national security affairs. The exception was dictated largely by security considerations, according to the White House.

Hugh Carter Jr., who has worked hard earning the nickname "Cousin Cheap," reduced the fleet of 29 chauffeured Newports to 14 and slashed the rest of the White House fleet, which includes trucks, vans and messenger cars, from 27 to 14.

The presidential cousin thus exceeded his own announced goal of trimming the fleet to 35 vehicles of all types. It's down to 28.

For an encore, Hugh Carter is in the process of trading in the Newports for Dodge Diplomats equipped with 225 cubic inch six-cylinder engines that the EPA figures are good for 19 miles to the gallon.

Moreover, three Plymouth Volare messenger vehicles, EPA rated at 17 miles per gallon, are being traded in for Plymouth Horizon subcompacts, which are just now finding their way into dealer showrooms. The Horizon rating is 26 miles per gallon.

The Times also presents "Classroom," news of the Murray School District each month.

'Pleasanton is nice and neat'

The Place I Would Most Like to Live

The place I would most like to live is in Pleasanton with Darlene. I would get an apartment that is good. It would have 1 or 2 bedrooms, a kitchen, dinette, and a living room. I would get my Dad to put up wallpaper. We would go to St. Vincent de Paul and get some furniture.

I would want to live there because I would know lots of guys. I would know alot of girls too. It is a nice city and think it is a neat town.

I would go to college and get a part-time job to pay rent. When I am done with college I would get a full time job as a teacher. I would also like to live here so I would not get lost.

(Lisa Rivenbark is in Mrs. Pearson's sixth grade class at Donlon School)

'I like Los Angeles'

A Place I Would LikE to Live

I would like to live in Los Angeles. I think it is a nice area. I like it because it is always hot. There is only one thing I don't like about it and that is all of the smog. When I was there I went to the star studios. They're very neat. They also have many stores that stay open 24 hours a day. It is a very convenient area because there are many things there to see and do.

When I go, I would like to go to Magic Mountain and Disneyland. I would go to a rock concert because they have many there. I would try and go in areas where I knew there were stars around.

If I lived there, I know I could find a nice house. I would be pretty careful there because I hear there are many robberies. I would like to live there because there is a large population so I could get a lot of friends.

(David Cohn is in Mrs. Pearson's sixth grade class at Donlon School)

'Oregon sky is very blue'

The Place I Would Like to Live

The place I would like to live is Oregon. I have been to Oregon and I like the way it has country and city. There is alot of mountains and snow. The sky is very blue and very pretty. The fields are very green and alot of dandelions growing wild. There is alot of farms with many animals.

I would like to live there because I like the country. I have some friends that used to live there and they said I would like it there. I like going up in the mountains and playing in the snOw. It rains alot in Oregon, but I'm sure I could get used to it. I think the town is very neat in Baker. It doesn't have alot of litter like Pleasanton.

(Jill Richardson is in Mrs. Pearson's sixth grade class at Donlon School)

'I'd probably have a good tan'

The Place I Would Like to Live

I would like to live in Hawaii. I have never been there before. (I would like to though) I have heard a lot about Hawaii. If I did live there, I probably would have a good tan because I would go to the beach all the time. I would learn how to surf. I would go to and have beach parties.

I would like to live there because of the hot weather (I like hot weather) and because of all the beaches and pools. Out of all the islands I would like to live on Honolulu, Oahu, the capital of the Hawaiian Islands.

What would make it better is cute boys with dark tans and that are tall. What I would do there is be lazy and swim, but I would have to go to school too, what a bummer!

(Sonja Savery is in Mrs. Pearson's sixth grade class at Donlon School.)

All about being kind to each other

Kindness

I think it is very important to be kind to others because nobody likes being left out. I would treat them like I would treat myself because everybody is special. If I had enough money and someone needed it I would give it to them.

One girlfriend gave me money for a newspaper and other times she helps me with math. Sometimes she takes the blame for what I did at school She helps me when I need it.

This is the way I like kindness.

(Debra Bay is in Ms. Blumberg's fourth grade class at Dublin Elementary.)

Kindness

I think it is very important to be kind to others. Someone who cares about people Kindness is being nice to others and being proud of others helping others.

It is important for others to be kind to me because I'll be in a happy mood and I'll be nice to others especially to the teacher and to class. I wish everybody is kind to each other.

(Clint Burns is in Ms. Blumberg's fourth grade class at Dublin Elementary.)

Factories pollute

Pollution

Factories burn trash that pollutes the air. They also waste trash. When cars go by, they dirty the air. We could stop this! We could ride a bike or a horse. We all must stop and think about this. For one reason it is not going to go away; it is just going to get harder. So if you ever have a fire in your fireplace, don't throw newspaper in it. It will just make black smoke and pollute the air.

(Paul Fischer is in Mrs. Pons' fourth grade class at Donlon School.)
